

HOUSING ELEMENT

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This section examines the existing housing stock and describes the policies for future housing. Included in the housing stock is the total units, age characteristics of the existing housing supply, occupancy rates, structural characteristics, affordability of housing, as well as housing programs.

Wisconsin State Statute 66.1001(2)(b)(b) Housing element*

A compilation of objectives, policies, goals, maps and programs of the local governmental unit to provide an adequate housing supply that meets existing and forecasted housing demand in the local governmental unit. The element shall assess the age, structural, value and occupancy characteristics of the local governmental unit's housing stock. The element shall also identify specific policies and programs that promote the development of housing for residents of the local governmental unit and provide a range of housing choices that meet the needs of persons of all income levels and of all age groups and persons with special needs, policies and programs that promote the availability of land for the development or redevelopment of low-income and moderate-income housing, and policies and programs to maintain or rehabilitate the local governmental unit's existing housing stock.

HOUSING POLICIES:

The following are the housing policies for the Town of Wyoming.

➤ As a rural scenic area with a low population and without access to existing infrastructure, the policy towards new housing will be

- Site proposed single-family residences to have low visual impact per the standards in the Building Siting Ordinance
- Maintain open spaces and rural character
- Direct proposed sub-divisions and high density development to nearby communities which have existing infrastructure and access to services. No areas for future residential development are identified in the Town, other than in two previously approved platted developments, the House on the Rock Resort and Epernay.

➤ Promote the preservation and rehabilitation of the existing housing stock in the Town of Wyoming.

The rehabilitation of housing may not be a problem in Wyoming today, but it may become one as homes age and require repairs. (See Figure B-4.) It is important to encourage property owners to preserve and rehabilitate their homes.

The Division of Community Development (DCD) has identified the conservation of quality housing and housing accessibility as top priorities for allocating federal and state housing resources in Wisconsin. Programs are established to provide essential home rehabilitation, accessibility, and other necessary improvements for dwelling units occupied by low-income homeowners. For more information, go to <http://www.commerce.state.wi.us/> and see the end of this Section.

➤ Utilize the Iowa County Zoning Ordinance and the Town of Wyoming's Section H, Land Use Element to maintain the rural character of the Town.

The key is adherence to the zoning ordinance and the Land Use Element, avoiding variances. This will help maintain the character of the Town by enforcing setback requirements, separating incompatible land uses, and enforcing other requirements as outlined in the County ordinance and the Town's Section H, Land Use Element. For more information, go to <http://www.iowacounty.org/pd-ordinances.html>.

➤ Discourage housing from areas where soils, slope, or other topographical limitations prove to be unsuitable.

Review proposed new housing to be sure it is in areas best suited. For example, slope limitations can cause a number of problems, such as run off, steep driveways, and flow problems for water and sanitary sewer service. Refer to the maps in Section E, Agricultural, Natural, and Cultural Resources Element and Map H.1, Section H, Land Use Element for more information. See Section I, Implementation Element for the Town's rural residential siting criteria.

➤ Coordinate planning activities with Iowa County and surrounding jurisdictions to effectively plan for residential growth.

Work with surrounding jurisdictions to identify future residential development areas, as well as addressing the need and number of new homes. For more information, go to Section G, Intergovernmental Cooperation Element.

- Review new housing proposals and support those proposals and programs that meet the Town's housing needs and are consistent with the policies outlined in the comprehensive plan.

Review housing proposals to be sure they are consistent with the policies outlined not only in the housing section of the comprehensive plan, but other sections as well. This may include doing some type of fiscal impact analysis answering the question: do the benefits of the proposed development outweigh the costs?

TOWN OF WYOMING HOUSING

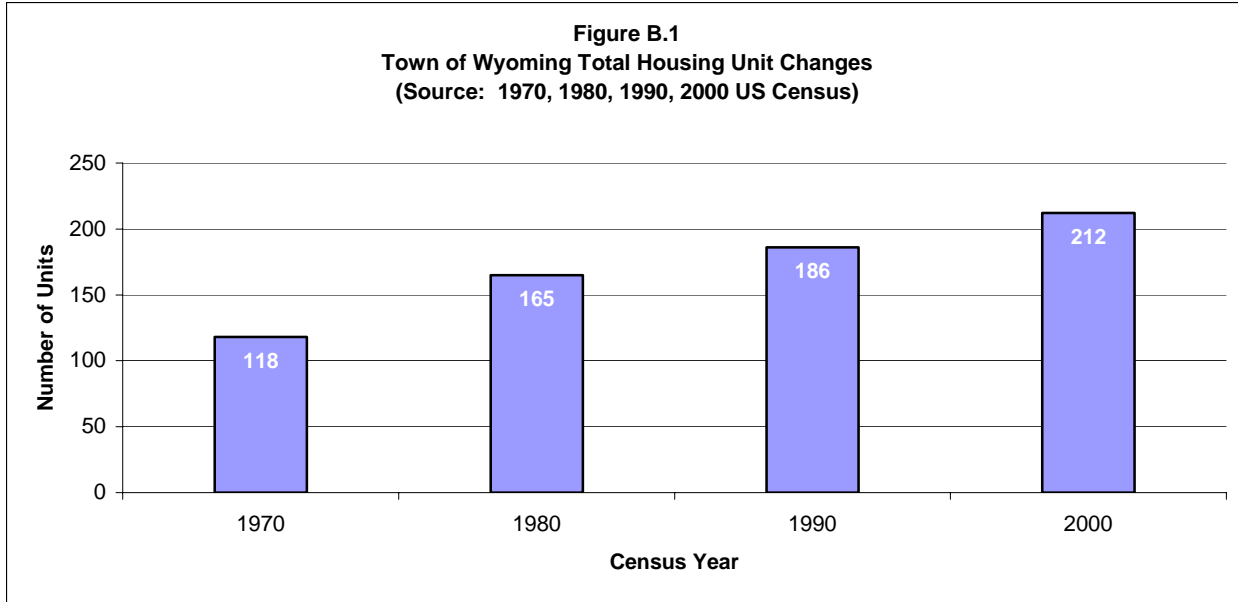

There are two existing approved subdivisions in the Town of Wyoming. One is the House on the Rock Resort with ninety-four single-family lots with nine houses constructed, 186 multi-family units with twelve condominiums (four buildings), and fourteen duplex units (seven buildings) constructed, a total of 280 approved units. Epernay is the other, with forty-seven single-family lots with four houses constructed.

The Town has a low population density, except for the two prior approved subdivisions, and opinion survey results expressed a preference for low density in order to retain the rural character and scenic beauty.

HOUSING CHARACTERISTICS

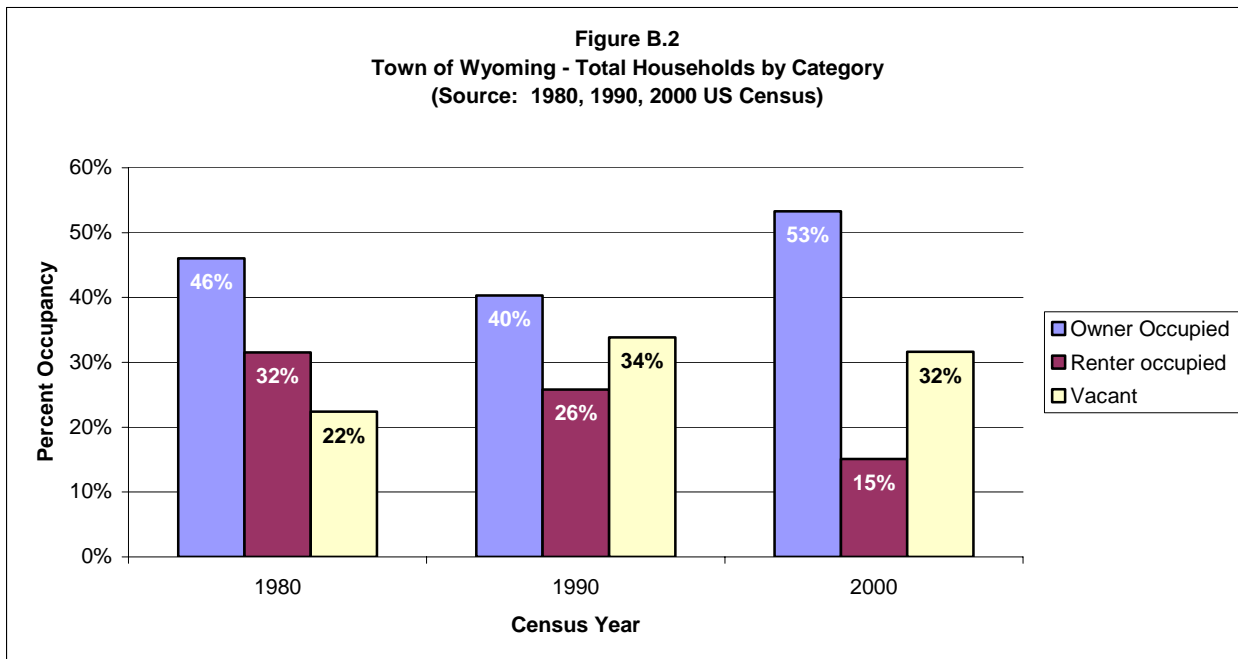

HOUSING UNITS

The Town of Wyoming housing supply has increased by ninety-four units over the last thirty years. As indicated in Figure B.1, the most significant increase occurred between 1970 and 1980, with an increase of 47 units.

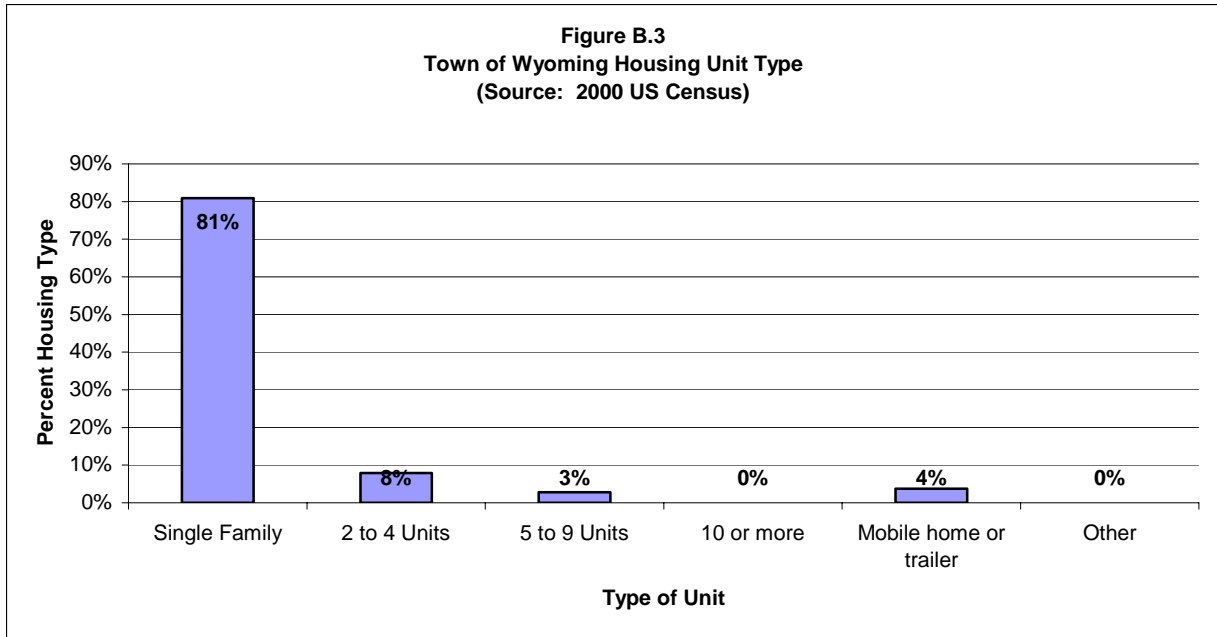

OCCUPANCY CHARACTERISTICS

Figure B.2 indicates the occupancy of households in the Town of Wyoming according to the 1980, 1990, and 2000 US Census. Between 1990 and 2000, there was a 13 percent increase in owner occupied households, the rental rate dropped 11 percent, and the vacancy rate decreased 2 percent. According to the 2000 Census, of the 212 housing units in the Town of Wyoming, 113 were owner occupied, thirty-two were renter occupied, with the remaining sixty-seven units defined as vacant by the US Census, but most are second homes used by non-residents. The average number of persons per household was 2.46 for owner occupied units, 2.50 for rental units.

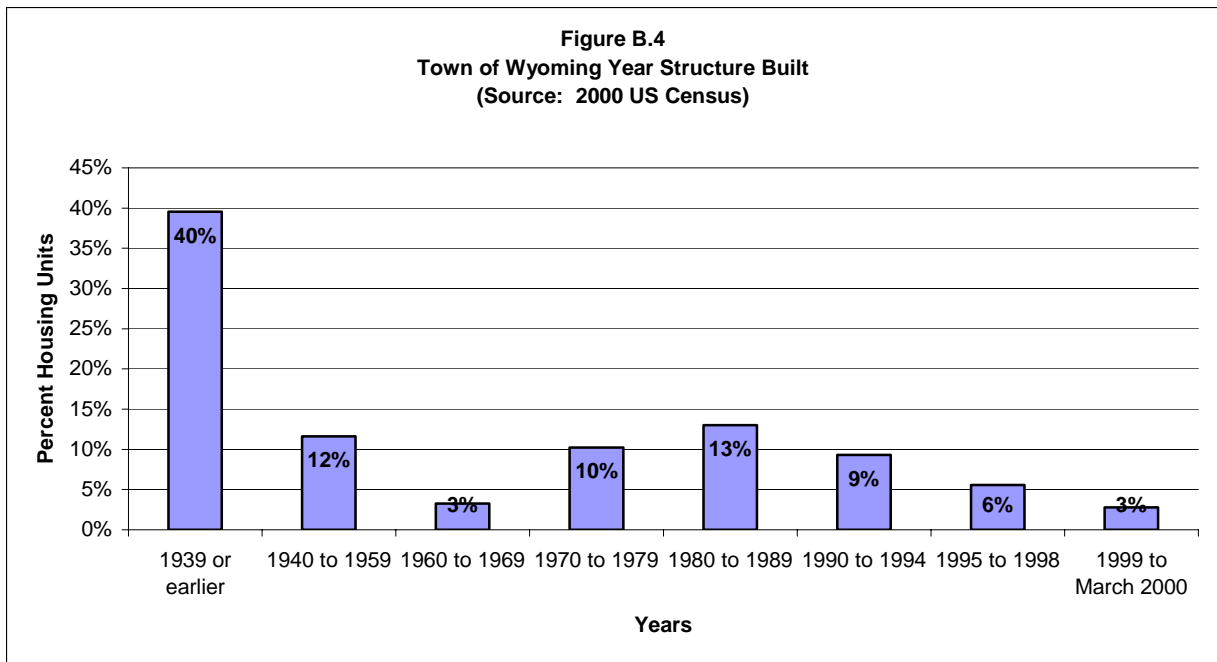

STRUCTURAL CHARACTERISTICS

Figure B.3 indicates the type of housing units in the Town of Wyoming as reported in the 2000 US Census. As indicated, the majority of housing units (81%) in the Town of Wyoming are single-family homes.

AGE CHARACTERISTICS

Figure B.4 shows the age of housing stock in the Town of Wyoming. Approximately 40 percent of Town of Wyoming houses were constructed in 1939 or earlier. Thirty-eight percent were built between 1940 and 1989 and 18 percent were constructed in the past decade.

HOUSING AFFORDABILITY

This planning process is an opportunity for local communities to increase housing choices not only by modifying development patterns, but also by increasing the supply in existing neighborhoods that can be served by the current infrastructure.

As mentioned previously in this section, housing affordability is a major component of the comprehensive plan. No single type of housing can serve the varied needs of today's diverse households. Table B.1 compares median home values over a ten-year period (1990 –2000), showing the difference in home values throughout the county. Table B.2 compares median rents paid over the same ten-year period for the county.

OWNER-OCCUPIED CHARACTERISTICS

Figure B.5 indicates the value of owner-occupied units in the Town of Wyoming. The majority of homes in the Town range in value from $100,000 to $149,999, with other units both above and below. The median value of an owner-occupied home in the Town in 2000 was $123,200.

Figure B.6 indicates monthly owner costs as a percentage of 1999 household income. Three households are paying more than 30 percent of their income towards housing costs. A home is generally considered affordable when the total costs do not exceed 30 percent of total household income. However, residents may choose to pay more for a particular style or type of home.

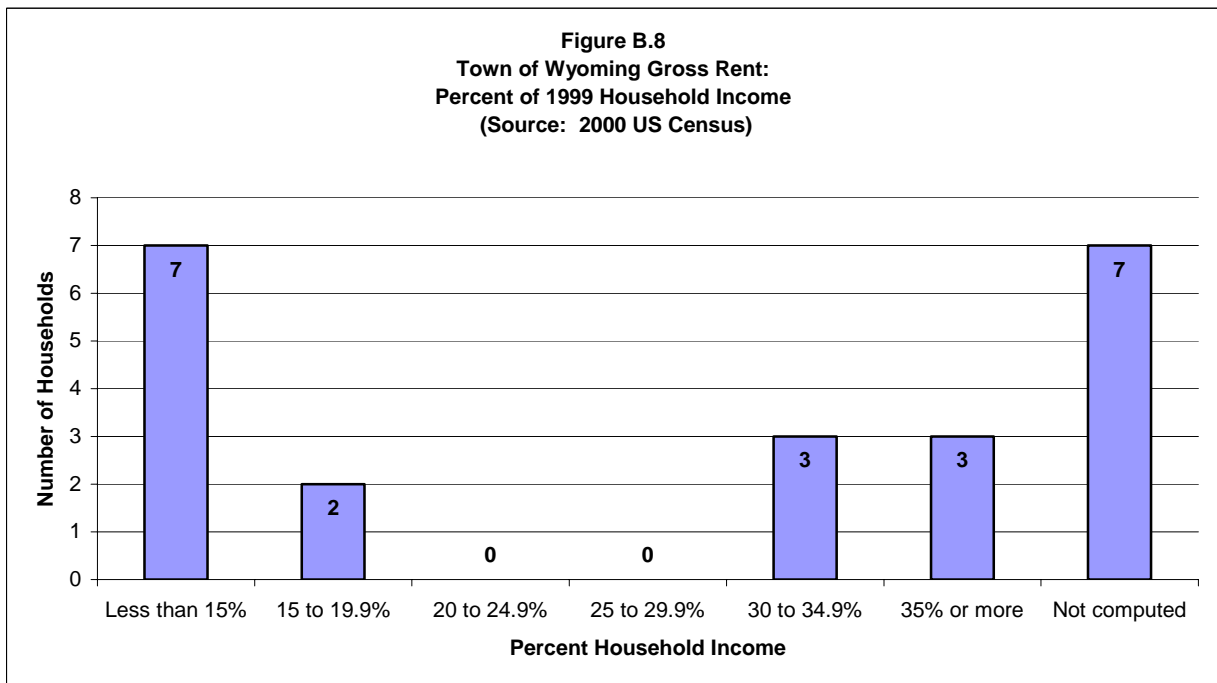

RENTER-OCCUPIED CHARACTERISTICS

Figure B.7 indicates the gross rent for renter-occupied units in the Town of Wyoming for the year 2000. The majority of units are in the range of $300 - $499 per month. In the year 2000, the median rent in the Town of Wyoming was $492.

As indicated by Figure B.8, six renters are paying in excess of 30 percent of their household income towards housing costs. As mentioned previously, a person should have the opportunity to live somewhere and pay less than 30 percent of their income towards housing. This does not mean that people will not pay more, but that they should have the opportunity available for affordable housing.
